Orange Wine

We love this fascinating and venerable style of winemaking. Essentially white wines made as if they were reds – the grape are left in contact with the juice as it ferments, and sometimes as it matures as well, orange wine can be utterly thrilling and unique when well executed.

When Pinot Grigio grapes are crushed and the skins are allowed to spend time with the juice, a teasing, tactile texture and coppery hue results in a distinct wine style called ramato. It comes from the word 'rame' which means 'copper' in Italian.
